

Why is a pension like a piece of tupperware?

It sounds boring. You probably don't think about it very often. But think about it for a moment and you'll realise it's actually really important. Imagine trying to carry your lunch or keep hold of your leftovers without a Tupperware lunchbox. Or store things around the house if you didn't have Tupperware containers. Seem a bit messy? That's how your finances could look later on if you don't start thinking about a pension now. Like Tupperware, a pension protects something that needs the very best protection. Like Tupperware pieces, pension plans come in different shapes and sizes, but there'll always be one that's right for you. Just as a piece of Tupperware is sturdy enough to cope with a few knocks and bumps, a good pension plan should be able to adapt as your needs change. Wherever your life takes you, you'll use it one day. And, like making sure you have enough spare Tupperware boxes at home, it's best to make sure you're saving enough for a pension before you really need it. Take care of your pension now and one day, your pension will take care of you.
